NOTES TO THE CONDUCTOR

This swinging arrangement of “Comfort and Joy” follows in the long tradition of adopting holiday music into a jazz language. But this chart goes one step further, adding a wee bit of “We Three Kings” in the ensemble chorus to give you a nice, jazzy holiday-carol “mashup.”

This arrangement is also a very nice vehicle for your improvisers. And though they can make it through their 16-bar solos with a (concert) G-minor pentatonic scale, a slightly more nuanced approach will go a long way. In fact, they can use three different scales in the right places to navigate their solos: G Dorian for the first 8 measures, B $\flat$ major for the next 4, and G harmonic minor for the final 4 measures. Open this arrangement to additional soloists by penciling in repeats from measures 47–78, and perhaps only using the backgrounds the last time through.

The repeated syncopated groove that begins in measure 5 should be played with a swing feel, not a straight-eighth Latin feel. Begin crescendos softly so there is room for growth. Finally, encourage all musicians to articulate clearly and precisely, especially the staccato notes. The marcato (▲) notes should be played detached and accented—think “daht.” Tenuto notes are played for their full values. For the unison sections, the players should strive to sound like one. Listening and adjusting are critical for accurate intonation.

The rhythm section parts are well notated. For the guitar comping sections, keep it light, and avoid overpowering the rhythm section and the ensemble. For the best sound, ask the guitarist to use medium-thick picks, held loosely between the thumb and index finger, to give the sound an acoustic quality. The guitarist’s quarter-note rhythm should perfectly mesh with the bass so that they merge into one big sound.

Enjoy!
