WHERE THE WATERS MEET (O WALY, WALY)

Where the Waters Meet was commissioned by the Irving ISD 2019 High School All-City Band in Irving, TX in memory of Lee South (June 11, 1939 – April 30, 2019). James South, Lee's son, conducted this piece at the premiere concert in December 2019.

Where the Waters Meet is based on the British Isles folk tune, O Waly, Waly (the same tune used in The Water is Wide). Lee South, former Texas music educator, loved nature, and he enjoyed spending time in the mountains and at his lake home on Lake Fork. He also loved teaching children. Lee felt that humans need two things above all else: to love and to be loved. That was the basis for his teaching; if students did not know you loved them, you would not reach them.

As I set out to write this special piece in honor of Lee, I decided to use the imagery of water to portray this particular sentiment: loving students, then truly being able to reach them. One set of waters (a river) meets, or flows into a larger body (a lake). The river is the teacher, and the lake is the body of students. Where the Waters Meet symbolizes the moment or moments when the teacher shows love, gives knowledge, and thereby reaches the students. Lee's principal instrument was the Trombone, which explains my choice of Trombone solo for the river's opening statement.
