Vorwort

Henry Purcells Ode „Hail! Bright Cecilia“ aus dem Jahr 1692 steht in einer langen Reihe von Kompositionen, die für den Festtag der Heiligen Cäcilia am 22. November geschrieben wurden. Unter seinen insgesamt über zwanzig Chor-Oden zu verschiedenen Anlässen war sie die letzte und umfangreichste.

Erstmals im Jahr 1683 hatte man in London das Fest für die Schutzpatronin der Musik mit einer entsprechenden Komposition begangen. Die Musical Society, eine Vereinigung aus führenden Musikern und wohlhabenden Musikliebhabern, beauftragte dafür eigens gedichtete Oden und ließ diese von bekannten Komponisten vertonen. Purcells Name ist in mehrfacher Weise mit diesem Anlass verknüpft. Sein erster Beitrag „Welcome to all the pleasures“ (Z 339) für das Jahr 1683 und das wohl gleichzeitig entstandene „Laudate Ceciliam“ (Z 329) markieren den Beginn institutionalisierter Aufführungen am Cäcilientag in London. In dichtem Abstand folgten bis 1700 Werke u.a. von John Blow, Giovanni Battista Draghi und Purcells Bruder Daniel Purcell. Einen Abschluss fand die intensive Phase der Cäcilienverehrung 1739 mit Georg Friedrich Händels Cäcilienode (HWV 76) auf den Text „From harmony“ von John Dryden.

Die Feierlichkeiten in London bestanden aus einem Gottesdienst in St. Bride's und einem anschließenden Konzert im Konzertsaal der Stationer's Hall. Man wollte mit besonderer Kunstfertigkeit und Virtuosität Cäcilia ehren, aber auch eine repräsentative und lukrative Auftrittsmöglichkeit für Musiker schaffen. Die Idee der Cäcilienfeste verbreitete sich von London aus auch in andere Landesteile. Purcell, dessen Oper Fairy Queen im Frühjahr 1692 uraufgeführt worden war, hatte zu dieser Zeit den Höhepunkt seiner Laufbahn und seines Könnens erreicht.

Der Text von Nicholas Brady, seinerseits beeinflusst durch Dryden (1687), thematisiert die antike Idee vom Ursprung der Musik und der Harmonie als Weltprinzip sowie die Wirkung der Musik auf die Affekte. Die Orgel als Königin der Instrumente verkörpert die himmlische Musik. Purcell vertont die sieben Strophen der Ode entweder vollständig in einem Satz (Nr. 4, 7, 13), oder teilt sie auf zwei bzw. drei Sätze auf. Eine Hervorhebung der Orchesterinstrumente gemäß der im Text genannten Instrumente lag auf der Hand.

Die vier Chorsätze fungieren als Gliederungselement. Auf die instrumentale Einleitung (fünfteilig, in Tempo, Besetzung und Lautstärke kontrastierend) folgen drei große zusammengehörige, meist mit Satzübergängen komponierte Abschnitte: der erste Abschnitt (Nr. 2–5) wird von zwei Chorsätzen gerahmt, deren erster durch ein kurzes Bass-Rezitativ eingeleitet wird. Im Zentrum steht das virtuose Altsolo Nr. 4 mit dem grandiosen Übergang zum Chorus „Soul of the world“. Der zweite Abschnitt (Nr. 6–10) beginnt wiederum mit einem Solo, diesmal vorgetragen vom Sopran, bevor der Chor einsetzt („Thou tun'st this world below“). Im Zentrum steht hier das Basssolo Nr. 8.

Der Abschnitt klingt aus mit dem innigen Duett von Alt und Tenor „In vain the am'rous Flute“. Der Kontrast zur nachfolgenden Fanfare von Nr. 11 „The Fife and all the harmony of war“, in der das kriegerische Instrumentarium vorgeführt wird, könnte kaum größer sein. Die Trompeten, die seit dem Ende der einleitenden Canzona pausierten, weisen zurück auf den Anfang. Der dritte und letzte Satz dieses Abschnitts, der Schlusschor Nr. 13, schlägt den Bogen zum Eingangschor und schafft – mit leichter textlicher Veränderung der Anfangszeile – eine Verklammerung des gesamten Werks.

Purcell nutzt die ganze Breite der Besetzungsvielfalt. Die Abfolge solistischer Arien, Duette, Ensembles und Chöre mischt er so, dass nie zwei Sätze gleichen Typs aufeinanderfolgen und sich eine formal abgerundete Gesamtstruktur ergibt. Neben stilistischer Abwechslung (melodische und reich verzierte Soli stehen neben homophonen Klangblöcken und polyphone Chorpässagen) ist eine große Ausgewogenheit gegeben.

Die Uraufführung war ein großer Erfolg. Das Werk wurde zweimal gesungen, wie einem Zeitungsbericht des mit Purcell befreundeten Chronisten Peter Motteux zu entnehmen war:

„The following Ode was admirably set to Music by Mr. Henry Purcell, and perform'd twice with universal applause, particularly the second Stanza [„'Tis nature's voice“], which was sung with incredible Graces by Mr. Purcell himself.“¹

Purcell standen mehr Solisten zur Verfügung, als er aufgrund der Anzahl an Solostimmen (SAATBB) benötigt hätte. So verteilte er die Solopartien auf insgesamt 13 verschiedene Personen. Es handelte sich überwiegend um Sänger der Chapel Royal sowie die Sopranistin Mrs. Aliff (und möglicherweise einen Knabensopran), also hervorragende Berufssänger, mit denen er bereits bei seinen Opernaufführungen zusammengearbeitet hatte. Worauf die Aussage zurückgeht, Purcell selbst habe das Altsolo „'Tis nature's voice“ Nr. 4 vorgetragen, ist unklar. Dass Purcell selbst sang, dürfte relativ unwahrscheinlich sein.

Zu einer Wiederholung von „Hail! Bright Cecilia“ kam es beim Besuch des Markgrafen Ludwig Wilhelm von Baden am 25. Januar 1694 (im Konzertsaal der York Buildings, London) und für eine weitere Aufführung am 22. Februar 1695 wurde offenbar eine Partiturabschrift angefertigt.

Purcell starb in der Nacht vom 21. auf den 22. November 1695, mit nur 36 Jahren. Die Zahl der nach seinem Tod entstandenen Abschriften und gedruckten Auszüge von „Hail! Bright Cecilia“ zeugen von der Beliebtheit des Werks, das sich rasch im Repertoire etablierte.

Foreword

Henry Purcell's ode "Hail! Bright Cecilia" of 1692 is one of a long series of compositions written for the feast day of St. Cecilia, 22 November. Among his altogether more than twenty choral odes for various occasions, this was the last and most extensive.

It was in 1683 that the festival for the patron saint of music was celebrated in London for the first time with a dedicated composition. The Musical Society, an association of leading musicians and wealthy music lovers, commissioned specially written odes and had them set to music by well-known composers. Purcell's name is linked with this occasion in several ways. His first contribution, "Welcome to all the pleasures" (Z 339) for the year 1683, and his ode "Laudate Ceciliam" (Z 329) mark the beginning of institutionalized performances on Cecilia Day in London. Works by John Blow, Giovanni Battista Draghi and Purcell's brother Daniel Purcell, among others, followed at close intervals until 1700. The intensive phase of the veneration of Cecilia came to an end in 1739 with George Frideric Handel's Ode for St. Cecilia's Day (HWV 76) on the text "From harmony" by John Dryden.

The celebrations in London consisted of a service in St. Bride's followed by a concert in the Stationer's Hall. The intention was to honor Cecilia with special artistry and virtuosity, but also to create a representative and lucrative performance opportunity for musicians. The concept of Cecilia festivals spread from London to other parts of the country. Purcell, whose opera Fairy Queen had premiered in the spring of 1692, had at this time reached the pinnacle of his career and skill.

The text by Nicholas Brady who in turn was influenced by Dryden (1687), deals with the ancient idea of the origin of music and harmony as a world principle, as well as the effect of music on the emotions. The organ as the queen of instruments embodied heavenly music. Purcell set some of the seven stanzas of the ode to music entirely in one movement (Nos. 4, 7, 13), and others divided into two or three movements. The orchestral instruments mentioned in the text were naturally emphasized in the setting.

The four choral movements serve as a structuring element. The instrumental introduction (in five sections which contrast in tempo, instrumentation and dynamics) is followed by three large sections that belong together and are mostly linked by movement transitions: the first section (Nos. 2–5) is framed by two choral movements, the first of which is introduced by a short bass recitative. The centerpiece is the virtuoso contralto solo No. 4 with its grandiose transition to the chorus "Soul of the world." The second section (Nos. 6–10) begins again with a solo, this time performed by the soprano, before the chorus enters ("Thou tun'st this world below"). The centerpiece here is the bass solo No. 8. This section ends with the intimate duet of contralto and tenor "In vain the am'rous Flute." The contrast with the following fanfare of No. 11 "The Fife and all the harmony of war," in which the martial instruments are demonstrated, could hardly be greater. The trumpets, paused since the end of the introductory Canzona, hark back to the beginning. The third and last movement of this section, the final chorus No. 13, returns to the opening chorus and – with a slight textual change to the opening line – creates a frame around the entire work.

Purcell made use of the entire range of scoring possibilities. He alternated the sequence of solo arias, duets, ensembles and choruses in such a way that no two movements of the same type follow one another, resulting in a formally rounded overall structure. In addition to stylistic variety (melodic and richly ornamented solos are found next to homophonic blocks of sonority and polyphonic choral passages), there is a great balance.

The first performance was a great success. The work was sung twice, according to a newspaper report by Peter Motteux, a chronicler who was a friend of Purcell:

"The following Ode was admirably set to Music by Mr. Henry Purcell, and perform'd twice with universal applause, particularly the second Stanza ["'Tis nature's voice"], which was sung with incredible Graces by Mr. Purcell himself."¹

Purcell had more soloists at his disposal than he would have needed for the number of solo parts (SAATBB). He therefore distributed the solo parts among a total of 13 different performers. They were mainly singers from the Chapel Royal well as the soprano Mrs. Aliff (and possibly a boy soprano), in other words, outstanding professional singers with whom Purcell had already worked in his opera performances. The origin of the statement that Purcell himself sang the contralto solo "'Tis nature's voice" No. 4, which is also adopted in printed editions of the aria, is unclear. It is relatively unlikely that Purcell himself sang.

"Hail! Bright Cecilia" was repeated during the visit of Margrave Ludwig Wilhelm von Baden on 25 January 1694 (in the concert hall of the York Buildings), and a copy of the score was evidently made for a further performance on 22 February 1695.

Purcell died on the night of 21–22 November 1695, aged only 36. The number of copies and printed excerpts of "Hail! Bright Cecilia" produced after his death bear witness to the popularity of the work, which quickly established itself in the repertoire.

Ode on St. Cecilia's Day 1692

1. [Symphony / Canzona]
2. Hail! hail! bright Cecilia. Hail! fill ev'ry heart with love of thee and thy celestial art; that thine and music's sacred love may make the British forest prove as famous as Dodona's vocal grove:
3. Hark! hark! each tree its silence breaks, the box and fir to talk begin!
this in the sprightly VIOLIN that in the FLUTE distinctly speaks!
'Twas sympathy their list'ning brethren drew, when to the Thracian lyre with leafy wings they flew.
4. 'Tis nature's voice; thro' all the moving wood of creatures understood:
the universal tongue to none of all her num'rous race unknown!
From her it learnt the mighty art to court the ear or strike the heart:
at once the passions to express and move;
we hear, and straight we grieve or hate, rejoice or love:
in unseen chains it does the fancy bind;
at once it charms the sense and captivates the mind.
5. Soul of the world! Inspir'd by thee, the jarring seeds of matter did agree, thou didst the scatter'd atoms bind, which, by thy laws of true proportion join'd, made up of various parts one perfect harmony.
6. Thou tun'st this world below, the spheres above, who in the heav'nly round to their own music move.
7. With that sublime celestial lay can any earthly sounds compare?
If any earthly music dare, the noble ORGAN may.
From heav'n its wondrous notes were giv'n, (Cecilia oft convers'd with heav'n,) some angel of the sacred choir did with his breath the pipes inspire; and of their notes above the just resemblance gave,
brisk without lightness, without dulness grave.

Ode zum Cäcilientag 1692

1. [Symphony / Canzona]
2. Gegrüßt seist du, strahlende Cäcilia. Gegrüßt seist du, erfülle jedes Herz
mit Liebe zu dir und deiner himmlischen Kunst; dass deine und der Musik heilige Liebe den britischen Wald so berühmt werden lässt wie Dodonas Hain des Gesanges.
3. Horch, horch, jeder Baum bricht sein Schweigen, Buchsbaum und Tanne fangen an zu reden!
Diese spricht durch die muntere GEIGE, jener deutlich durch die FLÖTE!
Es war die Sympathie, die ihre horchenden Brüder lockte, als sie zur thrakischen Leier mit belaubten Schwingen flogen.
4. Es ist die Stimme der Natur, durch den ganzen bewegten Wald der Geschöpfe verstanden: Die universelle Sprache, die keinem ihrer zahlreichen Geschlechter unbekannt!
Von ihr lernte sie die mächtige Kunst, um das Ohr zu werben oder das Herz zu berühren:
die Leidenschaften zugleich auszudrücken und zu erregen; wir lauschen, und sogleich trauern oder hassen wir, freuen uns oder lieben:
in unsichtbaren Ketten fesselt sie die Phantasie;
zugleich betört sie die Sinne und bezaubert den Geist.
5. Seele der Welt! Von dir inspiriert, einigten sich die streitenden Samen der Materie, du hast die zerstreuten Atome zusammengefügt, die, durch deine Gesetze der wahren Proportion verbunden, aus verschiedenen Teilen eine vollkommene Harmonie bildeten.
6. Du stimmst diese Welt hier unten, die Sphären dort oben, die sich im himmlischen Kreise zu ihrer eigenen Musik bewegen.
7. Können sich irdische Klänge mit dieser erhabenen himmlischen Melodie vergleichen?
Wenn irgendeine irdische Musik es wagte, dann wäre es die edle ORGEL.
Vom Himmel wurden ihr wunderbare Töne gegeben, (Cäcilia hat oft mit dem Himmel Gespräche geführt), ein Engel aus dem heiligen Chor hat mit seinem Atem die Pfeifen beseelt; und ihren Tönen droben die wahre Ähnlichkeit verliehen, lebhaft ohne Oberflächlichkeit, ernst ohne Stumpfheit.

8. Wondrous machine!
to thee the warbling LUTE, though us'd to conquest, must be forc'd to yield:
with thee unable to dispute.

9. The airy VIOLIN
and lofty VIOL quit the field;
in vain they tune their speaking strings to court the cruel fair, or praise victorious kings.
Whilst all thy consecrated lays are to more noble uses bent;
and ev'ry grateful note to heav'n repays the melody it lent.

10. In vain the am'rous FLUTE and soft GUITAR jointly labour to inspire wanton heat and loose desire; whilst thy chaste airs do gently move Seraphic flames and heav'nly love.

11. The FIFE and all the harmony of war in vain attempt the passions to alarm, which thy commanding sounds compose and charm.

12. Let these amongst themselves contest, which can discharge its single duty best.
Thou summ'st their diff'ring graces up in one, and art a consort of them all within thy self alone.

13. Hail! hail! bright Cecilia, hail to thee!
Great patroness of us and harmony!
Who, whilst among the choir above thou dost thy former skill improve, with rapture of delight dost see thy fav'rite art
make up a part of infinite felicity.
Hail! hail! bright Cecilia, hail to thee!
Great patroness of us and harmony!

Text: Nicholas Brady (1659–1726)

8. Wundersames Gerät!
Dir gegenüber muss die trällerende LAUTE, obwohl an Siege gewöhnt, sich fügen:
mit dir kann sie nicht diskutieren.

9. Die lebhaftige GEIGE und die erhabene GAMBE räumen das Feld; vergebens stimmen sie ihre sprechenden Saiten um die grausame Schöne zu umwerben, oder siegreiche Könige zu preisen.
Während alle deine geweihten Melodien zu edleren Zwecken geneigt sind; und jede dankbare Note dem Himmel die geliehene Melodie wieder zurückgibt.

10. Vergebens bemühen sich die liebliche FLÖTE und die sanfte GITARRE zusammen um lüsterne Hitze und liederliche Begierde zu wecken; während deine keuschen Lieder sanft seraphische Flammen und himmlische Liebe bewegen.

11. Die PFEIFE und die ganze Harmonie des Krieges versuchen vergebens die Leidenschaften zu erschrecken, die deine gebieterischen Klänge beruhigen und bezaubern.

12. Lass jene untereinander wetteifern, wer seine einzelne Pflicht am besten erfüllen kann.
Du fasst ihre verschiedenen Grazien in ein Ganzes zusammen,
und bist, in dir selbst, eine Gefährtin von ihnen allen.

13. Gegrüßt seist du, strahlende Cäcilia, gegrüßt seist du!
Große Patronin von uns und von der Harmonie!
Die du, während du droben im Chor dein früheres Können vergrößerst, mit entzücktem Blick betrachtest wie deine Lieblingskunst einen Teil der unendlichen Glückseligkeit gestaltet.
Gegrüßt seist du, strahlende Cäcilia, gegrüßt seist du!
Große Patronin von uns und von der Harmonie!
