Farewell to Nova Scotia

Traditional

Arranged by Don Robb

It might seem odd that a Prairie boy, who has yet to visit the Maritimes, would make an arrangement of this particular folk song. But perhaps it is not that odd at all. Farewell to Nova Scotia is a wonderful tune, and it inspired a lot of ideas. From time to time I would jot down these ideas with the goal of eventually making an arrangement. As a member of the Bridge Brass Quintet, I knew the arrangement would be played at least once. (much to my delight, we have performed it often)

A few years after the original arrangement was completed, Howard Cable came into our Southern Alberta lives. On a visit, I asked him to look at this arrangement and make comments. He graciously did, and the result is this arrangement.

I am ever grateful to the Bridge Brass Quintet and to Howard Cable for all their contributions. I hope you enjoy this arrangement.
