Wings of Fortitude

Ryan Meeboer

Wings of Fortitude is a concert march that reflects that definition: courageous, brave, and having tenacity.

The piece opens with runs performed by the flute and alto sax, accompanied by strong chords. Although this can be very exciting for young performers, they should not over blow, risking the chance of losing good tone. It is also a good opportunity to have woodwind players work on quick fingering techniques.

As the main body of the march enters at measure 9, the trumpets play the melody and the remaining parts striking chords together - be sure the performers don't overpower the trumpet melody here. As the counter melody enters at measure 25, played by the trombone and tenor sax, both melodies should be clear to the listener over the accompaniment.

Both the contrasting section, at measure 41, and the trio, at measure 73, give the ensemble the opportunity to work on performing legato, versus the louder, striking sections of the piece. The Trio section was composed to reflect the style of a traditional march. This section is to be played with a light bounce, in order to affectively contrast the rest of the piece. Breath support will be key to being able to perform both of these sections successfully.

Ryan Meeboer is a music educator, who obtained his degree through the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education at the University of Toronto. As a composer, he has written and arranged many pieces for concert band, jazz band, and small ensembles. His young band piece, Last Voyage of the Queen Anne's Revenge, has been well received by performers, educators, and audiences, and his pieces are starting to be found on festival and contest lists. As a performer, he has had experience in several groups, including concert and stage bands, chamber choir, vocal jazz ensemble, acoustic duets, and the Hamilton based swing group, "The Main Swing Connection".

Ryan began studying music at the age of seven through private guitar lessons. During his years in elementary and secondary school, he gained experience in several families of instruments. Focusing on music education and theory (including composition and orchestration), he attended McMaster University to achieve his honours degree in music. Ryan is currently a teacher for the Halton District School Board in Ontario, where he continues to compose and arrange.

Please contact the composer if you require any further information about this piece or his availability for commissioning new works and appearances.
