

Table of Contents

Illustrations	9
Acknowledgments	13
Introduction	17
Chapter 1
Stages of Construction, 1870–1884: The Idea of Opera House and the Urban Press	34
Chapter 2
Imperial Experiment, 1884: The Inauguration Scandal and the Theatre Crowd	62
Chapter 3
Modernity Looming: Eroticism, Progress, Political Order and the Ballet Excelsior , 1887	83
Chapter 4
National Experiment, 1887: Giuseppe Verdi, the Famous Hungarian	109
Chapter 5
Stylistic Challenge, 1889: Gustav Mahler and the International Operetta	127
Chapter 6
Commemorating Celebrity, 1893: Bánk bán and Other Matters. Ferenc Erkel's Legacy	149

Chapter 7

Another Stylistic Challenge, 1901: From Gypsy Music to Wagner without a Transition	171
--	-----

Chapter 8

Empire Triumphant, 1905: Johann Strauss and Der Zigeunerbaron	195
--	-----

Chapter 9

Modernity Arriving, 1912: Richard Strauss's Salome in Budapest	222
---	-----

Chapter 10

Calls of Fatherland, 1916: Karl Goldmark and the New Public	251
---	-----

Chapter 11

Modernity Triumphant, 1917: Béla Bartók's Wooden Prince and Bluebeard's Castle	275
--	-----

Chapter 12

Conclusion	298
----------------------	-----

Bibliography	317
------------------------	-----

List of Intendants and Directors of the Opera House, 1884–1918	334
--	-----

Index	336
-----------------	-----